Dear Barbara,

I guess I wasn't surprised to learn of your mothers passing as I knew she must be getting up there in years. But, then again since she would never let anyone know how old she was I could have believed she was as youg as she looked which was always about 20 years younger than she was., I pray every day that I have a few of her genes in my body which seems to be aging much quicker than it should.
Well the cat is out of the bag now! We all know how old she was and I'm sure when ever our family gathers we"ll all get a chuckle out of Helen"s best kept secret.
Your mother was always extreemly nice to me. She never failed to great me with a big smile and hug. She was also very nice to my mother who as you know never drove so was completly lost after my father died. Helen would come over every week to drive her to the store {after she wipped her feet before getting in the Mustand} and also somewhere for coffee. It ment a great deal to mon at that time. Of course we all feel bad at the passing of the last of the old timers; the people we always met at weddings and funerals and who told us how much we had grown. I guess we're the old timers now.
My condolances to you and all your family.
