“ I miss you 😊

mary Kendziorski - November 18, 2025 at 02:16 PM

“ Dear Mr. and Mrs. Kendziorski, Ms. Michelle Grant, daughter Mary and other family and members and friends,

I am a complete stranger but when I read Ben's obituary in the Hartford Courant this past week, I felt a profound sadness for your loss and the death of a young man who seem to have so much to offer to his family and the world, but suffered like I have suffered over the years from depression and mental illness. When I read Ben had been waiting six weeks for admission to a rehab facility at the time of his death, not only as a fellow human being was I deeply saddened, but also incredibly angry that somehow a person who was in such need of help was unable to get and it resulted in his death. That to me is a crime and a tragedy as now his partner, daughter and family have to pick up the pieces and somehow going on living.

First, I want to express my sincerest condolences and share, for whatever it is worth, that I will keep Ben and all of his family in my thoughts and prayers. I wish you all well and pray that somehow, you may have the strength and wisdom to overcome this tragedy and one day gain a sense of hope for the future, especially for his daughter Mary.

I've been and continue to be an educator for many decades and had the experience to work both with young people and colleagues who suffered from depression and mental illness. It is an incredibly difficult thing to deal with as I too know what it was like to feel like I was drowning in a pit and could not see above the surface of that pit. I was lucky, I was able to get the help that I needed and able to pick myself up and continue my life as a father, spouse, and educator. I was lucky.

It angers me that the State of Connecticut is not providing the resources it should to a place like where Ben was waiting for treatment from so that he could have received treatment, gotten the help that he needed, because people can recover, get better and go on to live the lives that he should be able to live.

After writing this, I will be writing my state of CT representatives in the House and Senate and argue that full and complete funding of agencies that serve folks like Ben should be fully funded so that not another single life has to be lost.

May blessings be yours and please know that perhaps I'm not the only stranger that grieves when he or she learns about a passing like Ben's.

I wish you all the very best and I hope you can cherish all the good things in your heart that Ben gave to his family and this world. He will not be forgotten.

Sincerely,

“ Ben was a gentle kind person genuinely giving by nature he was very helpful to me and my son in helping us to move after the death of my husband he did this out of pure goodness expecting nothing in return a man of few words but what he did have to say was comforting and supportive sometimes funny a beautiful smile when talking about Michelle and his family it was clear to me how much he loved them he also spoke of his struggle with anxiety and how difficult it was living with that sometimes I was very sad when I heard the news of his passing and want to send my condolences to his family and anyone else who was fortunate enough to know him
