Carla was such a wonderful friend and a great support to me many a days spent on the picnic tables at work figuring out life work problems Etc she let me borrow a folding table one time for quite a few years I love that table but then she needed it back and every time I saw her I would say my table my table as Carla's life wall wound down and she downsized she called me and said come pick up your table it is prominently staged right inside my door under my favorite piece of art I look at it all the time and think of Carla it's now even more special
