“ Dear Pat and Ben, please know that you are both in my thoughts at this difficult time for you. Matt was such a warm person with such a gentle soul that anyone who came in contact with him, was the richer for it.

When Matt hired me, I came from a world where showing kindness and sympathy was taken as a sign of weakness. He taught me otherwise, though often I struggled against it.

Through him I learned that doing all you can to help others makes you stronger and a better person. Ultimately he became my mentor, my guide and my friend.

I will never forget him or what he taught me.

Bless you both,
Bil Pinette

“ Pat and Ben - my heart hurts for you both - he loved you both so much and had immense pride for you. The news of Matts passing has hit me as hard as I thought it would. Matt was one of the most influential people in my life, more than a mentor, more than a friend. He was like a second Dad to me. I can't explain the connection we had - I just think sometimes in life we connect with people on a level that can't be explained. For the last twenty years he was a blessing in my life. When he first hired me twenty years ago he changed my life with his encouragement and guidance - he believed in me when I didn't believe in myself and made me feel I could do anything. Even if I was terrible at something he made me feel it was wonderful. I will never ever forget what he did for me. I will forever remember the many, many laughs we shared usually at things no one else thought was funny which made us laugh even more. I valued his friendship, kindness and love and I'm so glad that I told him that every time we spoke, especially over the last couple of years. He really and truly cared about the people he served and had a profound impact on the lives of so many. His gentle nature, willingness to listen and his humor made him the successful director he was. What he did for the people that came through our doors at the center was always heartfelt and genuine - the people felt it and knew it and that is why he was SO loved and respected by everyone he came in contact with. I will forever remember his heart, his love for animals, his laughter and his kindness. I will always miss him XO.
