“ Billy, we always loved your family chronicles done in &ldquo;memo&rdquo; form. Along with news of the broader family and your friends, you shared great recipes for the grill and recommended wonderful wine pairings at bargain prices. As the family historian who knew every birthday, anniversary and date of passing, you often shared your reflections on these dates which kept people fresh in our thoughts. You cared so very much about the family and you never missed a chance to send a humorous birthday card. We will greatly miss your jovial calls with your booming voice and dry sense of humor. The practical worldly wisdom you shared with us will be missed as well. I will remember celebrating your birthdays on the 4th of July and the huge family gatherings at holidays that you loved so much. Every corgi that I ever see will make me smile and think of you.###imported-begin###Deb Watson###imported-end##

“ Although I rarely saw you, we talked many times each year- reminiscing about High School and all the parties, and all the time that passed. I will so miss your letters, typed out only as you could, and the many recipes and wine selections that you would carefully fold inside. Most of all I will miss your call on my Birthday as you did every year since 1972. May you find peace in Heaven with all the other angels. I will miss you my friend. Love,
